Vast Mountain Range in North

Washington, Aug. 30 (AP).—The discovery of a vast range of mountains submerged under the cold waters of the Bering Sea was reported today to the Coast Guard by Commander L. V. Kelhorn of the Bering sea patrol.

Some of the peaks were said to rise almost perpendicularly for 11,000 feet from the ocean floor.

Discovered by the cutter Chelan, which is engaged in protecting the seal herd of the Bering Sea, these sub-oceanic mountains were described as lying between the Aleutians and Pribilof Islands. They roughly follow a course paralleling the Alaskan Rockies.

This discovery, Coast Guard officials said, apparently confirms a theory understood here to be held by Professor Lyman Phifer of the University of Washington that such a range of mountains must exist somewhere in the Bering.

The cutter Chelan, of which Commander Kelhorn is master, is equipped with all manner of scientific devices and, while not engaged in other duties, its crew chart the bottom of the northern seas.

Among the new pictures of interest to educators are listed Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" and "A Midsummer Night's Dream," Dickens' "A Tale of Two Cities" and "Oliver Twist," "Little Lord Fauntleroy," Tolstoy's "Anna Karenina," Pearl Buck's "The Good Earth," Scott's "Ivanhoe" and Kipling's "Kim".

Shokan, Aug. 29.—Conrad Beck of New York city is spending a vacation at the home of his friends, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Loyder.

Mrs. S. H. Abkarian has returned to her home in Pelham after a sojourn of two weeks in Shokan.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Arnold, newlyweds from Guilderland, are at the residence of Mr. Arnold's grandmother, Mrs. Sarah Elmendorf Park, N. J., was a week-end visitor to the Cruthers summer home.

A call has been issued by Michael R. Frolich, educational director at Camp S-53, CCC, for 57 men to represent the camp at the district athletic meet in Schenectady on September 5. Members of Company 215 will be selected by elimination trials for participating in the 14 major events at the meet.

Miss Dana Willis has returned to New York city after spending several weeks at the Winchell Farm. Miss Willis, formerly of Kingston, will continue her studies at Stratford College, Danville, Va.

A number of local men hope to secure employment on county road work in Olive this fall. Brush-cutting along the town roads of the first district has been completed by a force of eight men.

Miss Julia Allen, well known summer visitor to Shokan for many years, returned to her home in Brooklyn last week.

Flag-poles and copies of Old Glory floating in the breeze are conspicuous by their absence on most places occupied during the summer months by city people. An exception is that of C. Hellman, mayonnaise king, whose tall pole and large flag stand out in bold relief against one of the lower Catskill peaks.

Miss Violet Abkarian, an office employee of the American Radiator Company in New York city, spent the week-end in Shokan.

August 29, 1867, Nathan W. Watson and Abram C. Hull, assisted by Dewitt C. Davis, were busy getting right of way deeds in Olive and adjoining towns for the proposed Rondout & Oswego. Mr. Watson was the industrial leader in Watson Hollow and the owner of more than 9,000 acres of land in three towns; Dr. Hull, physician and postmaster, was the father of Mrs. Elizabeth Smith of Kingston; Mr. Davis was a well known local surveyor. The town of Olive, on the preceding April 7, had issued $75,000 bonds for the purpose of taking stock in the new railroad.

Russell Colgate of Ashokan is serving as a hospital orderly at the CCC camp. Archie Bocari, a former Shokan boy, is holding down the job of chief headquarters clerk at the big camp. Lieut. Sidney Glass is the medical officer for the 215th Co.

Luke Burlingham and Frank Terwilliger were numbered among the hustling young Kingston business men seen on our streets Monday.

The worship service at the Reformed Church takes place at 11:15 a. m. each Sunday. The Bible school is held at 10 o'clock. On September 8, 15 and 22, Stuart Curnock will occupy the pulpit. On September 29, the Rev. A. V. Wallace will be the preacher. The mid-week prayer meetings are held every Thursday at 8 p. m. On September 5, 12 and 19, Mr. Curnock will lead these meetings. On September 26 and October 3, the meetings will be led by Daniel B. Sampson, superintendent of the Sunday school. Sunday, October 6, will be Communion Sunday, and the pastor, the Rev. August Patus, Jr., will be in the pulpit. The worship services at the Mt. Tremper Reformed Church will be conducted as above, except that the hour is at 10 o'clock each Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Nodine and son of New York city have moved into a part of the Winchell house on the corner. Mr. Nodine succeeds to the vacancy in the local reservoir force caused by the death of LeGrand Bishop of Kingston. His official rating is that of engine truckman.

Mountain Valley Cottage, home of Mr. and Mrs. Burtis Wheat and family, has been attractively repainted and other improvements have been made about the house and grounds.

Crows are playing havoc with the corn on some farms, the birds being especially destructive in those parts of a field where the stalks have blown down. Grey squirrels, operating in gangs of four or more, also are taking their toll of grain from isolated stands of corn.

Guests at the Shokan House include H. Slade and daughter of Huntington, L. I., and John Wright of Glendale.

Miss Elsie Secor of Kingston and sister, Geraldine, are enjoying a motor trip to Canada, according to cards received from the young women by some of their Shokan friends.

Charles Green has a thrifty looking young peach orchard, a part of which will be of bearing age next year.

Saturday, August 30, 1890, was the date the quarterly meeting of the Olive Town Sunday School Association. Those in attendance were the Rev. William H. Vaughn, pastor of the Shokan M. E. Church, and president of the association; Captain Garret O. House, the secretary, and a few ladies. After "visiting for some time and no more coming," it was carried to adjourn and meet in November at the call of the president.

John Ingalls of California is visiting his sisters, the Misses Ann, Edith and Margaret Ingalls.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Casabianca, regular summer visitors to Shokan, are guests at Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Bell's.

"Chiang to Go" China Told by Japanese Army

(FOR AUGUST 30)
By Morris J. Harris

Shanghai (AP).—A major upheaval in Chinese internal affairs, aimed at clearing anti-Japanese elements from high offices, was forecast by Major-General Kenseuke Isogai, Japanese military attaché in China and spokesman for the Japanese army.

"The Nanking government," said General Isogai, "is merely a mask for a higher power—the military clique headed by General Chiang Kai-Shek."

"This back-stage military combine—which is the root of most anti-Japanese activities in China—will have to be eliminated or drastically reformed before we can expect any real improvement in China-Japanese relations."

General Isogai said he hoped direct Japanese military action, with heavy cost in lives, would not be necessary.

"The situation must be corrected," he continued, "but there are indications that the correction will come from within. I believe that Chinese leaders soon will come to their senses and end this pernicious system."

Want Change At Nanking
"Meanwhile, the Japanese army, with no thought of immediate use of force, will continue to press vigorously for the readjustment of conditions which threaten the stability of the Far East."

General Isogai said the Japanese army thinks General Chiang should return to Nanking from his field headquarters in remote Szechuan province, where he is virtually unapproachable.

"It is useless," he continued, "for us to try to do business with the government at Nanking. The authorities there are merely convenient buffers for General Chiang and his military followers. They have no real power."

Cadets Back Old Chief
"When General Chiang rose to power in 1927, he carried with him many of the cadets who once served under him at the Whampoa Military Academy at Canton. Today, General Chiang and his Whampoa cadets are running China, with their activities only thinly veiled by the false-front government at Nanking.

"They are dominant in Kuomintang, the national party of China. They control the 'blue shirts' and scores of secret organizations."

"The Japanese army is not concerned whether General Chiang remains in the saddle. Our only interest is in the abolition of the system, which is the greatest remaining obstacle to the restoration of friendly relations between China and Japan."

Wellington, N. Z. (AP).—New Zealand is buying more American automobiles, an indication of returning prosperity according to business circles. For the six months ending with June, exports totaled $135,545,000 and imports $83,590,000, giving a substantial trade balance.

INSECT NEWS

Insects have become news. It started, apparently, with the spiders, and is spreading so that there may soon be daily newspaper columns of the latest developments in the insect world. Some pedantic reader may stop us right here and insist that spiders are not "insects." But that's quibbling. An insect is any unpleasant thing that crawls over you.

The first spider invader of the news columns was a tiny critter that won fame by trussing up a snake about 1,000 times its own size and hoisting it to a position where it could serve for the season's food supply. Lately the black widow spider has been enjoying the lime-light, not for her natural courage or her prowess with hoisting tackle, but for the potency of her poison. But that field is about exhausted, after numerous scientific yarns involving this venomous widow with men, white mice and other giants, and ending with turtles. Scientists triumphantly announced recently that a dose of 4.5 milligrams of black widow toxin would paralyze the heart of a 250-gram turtle within three minutes. But this fact is of no practical importance. Black widows don't hunt turtles.

Some readers may have been more intrigued by the breaking into print of a spider with the classic name of Retarius and a bug named Scutiger. The former, one-eighth of an inch long, caught and bound the latter, who measured an inch and a half, under a dining room table, amid a tremendous hissing from the bug, while five fascinated dinner guests looked on for several hours and then rushed to report the combat to the newspapers. Doubtless the insect world is full of Captain Kids and Dorgias and Jack-the-Giant-Killers and Bluebeards and Samsons and Cyclopes and so on. And inasmuch as the insects on this earth outnumber the people more than a billion to one, it's obviously a great news field.

AVIATION'S DARK HOUR

The Senate properly investigated the disaster which took Wiley Rogers and Wiley Post, not to fix blame upon anyone but to publicize the cause of the crash and eliminate, so far as possible, a repetition. Meanwhile the forces of aviation insist that the Alaskan horror took place under circumstances that do not attend commercial flying in this country and is no more indicative of risk under average conditions than the Memorial Day automobile races at Indianapolis indicate the dangers of autoing on city streets.

However, those in charge of the forthcoming National Air Races at Cleveland may well tone down some of the stunts and thrills which have been a part of past exhibitions. The thrills may help the gate but at the expense of the air industry.

THE MONKEY HUNT.

The region around Massapequa, Long Island, will doubtless remember the year 1923 by the monkeys. A garbador will say:

Remember that year the monkeys got out of Frank Park Zoo Island? How we caught 'em in bags with lumps of sugar, and clamped butter-broiled corn 'em, and—

Sure I do. Wasn't that the year the depression was getting better and Italy started that war and everything? Well, it was. I was too busy with those damned monkeys in my much attention to the other things.

A workman employed on the island park laid a plank across the moat, and 150 monkeys promptly took advantage of the temporary bridge to go exploring. One of the water-entertaining features of the hunt was a stunt pulled off by a fireman. Nipe monkeys roared on a high diapole. The fireman would shake the diapole. A monkey would promptly take hold of it and then the fireman would pull the rope down. Some of the monkeys swung along down easily, some tried to climb up and it became a question whether the fireman could pull down faster than the monkey could climb up. The fireman won eight out of the nine. One remained on the pole. The crowd of 2,000 who had been cheering the proceeding melted away as the last chap was left to let hunger change his mind.

One monkey looks like and is named Al Capone. For him a reward of $50 is offered while $2.50 is the price for the others. Al is a leader, the park manager says, and if he can be induced to return, others will follow him willingly.

Some pretty good stories are bound to come out of this hunt. True, too. Unlike, of course, Kipling's "A Naval Mutiny," told by "the worst liar in the service."

VEGETABLES FOR ESKIMOS.

We seem to have got the Eskimos all wrong. French scientists who have been studying the race in Greenland, where 14,000 of them live, say they prefer broccoli to blubber, cultivating that succulent vegetable in the summer, in spots where it will grow, and eating it with great gusto. Probably they like spinach, too. They also live not in snow huts, but in houses of stone, bone and wood, covered with turf.

More remarkable still is the announcement that those supposedly primitive people have a language of 10,000 words and ordinarily use a much larger vocabulary than the American business man. Moreover, they vastly multiply that vocabulary by inflecting words in several hundred different ways. Language is a sort of mental map. It must be a highly intelligent race that develops such a language.

That Body of Yours

BY James W. Barton, M.D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

There is no one subject that seems to interest so many readers as does acne or pimples. When we remember that they come at the age of 14 to 16 and often last till the victim is 30 years of age it is but natural that anything that will prevent or cure this condition is eagerly sought. I have spoken before about the use of Viostron. The treatment is: Start with ten drops each day in water and increase the dose gradually until at the end of two weeks 20 drops are being taken daily. Continue to take 20 drops daily for two more weeks. This "four weeks" treatment was found to be very successful in a number of university students.

Cutting down on fried and starchy foods is another method of preventing pimples. It would seem that as boys and girls enter into manhood and womanhood with the natural gland changes that occur at this time, certain foods do not seem to be handled by the digestive system as completely as they should be, with the result that the blood becomes overloaded with these "incomplete" products, and pimples occur.

Fat foods cause much skin irritation including pimples and boils. The foods rich in fats are: butter, cream, fat meat, yolks of eggs, nuts, mackerel, herring, salmon, sardines, goose, pork, cheese, chocolate and cocoa.

"Fats act in two ways to cause pimples, boils and sometimes eczema: first, large amounts of fat in the food slow down the movements of digestion and interfere with the digestion of the other foods so that putrefaction—going bad—of undigested food may take place in the intestine. Second, if great amounts of fat are eaten the body may not be able to handle it all at once and products of this incomplete oxidation (burning up) of fat may accumulate in the blood and tissues. These substances are in the blood and are carried to the skin and cause irritation.

Thus the treatment of acne or pimples consists in cutting down on fat, rich desserts, greasy and fried foods, keeping the intestine regular, and the use of the various remedies used by skin specialists—viostron internally, ointments on the skin, and the use of the X-ray in competent hands.

MORNING STAR

— BY MARIAN SIMS —

SYNOPSIS: Emily Feltton has relapsed into the dull routine of small town life after graduation from Ardmore College. Her bright, set memories are of David and David, although when the Corrells lost their beautiful plantation, David disappeared into China and has not been heard from since. At least by Emily. Emily has the timid and private Edna James and a job at the Elton library for compensation. She is now quarrelling with her board over "sticker books."

Chapter 15

ESCAPE?

THE chairman looked uncomfortable. He had a reluctant admiration for Emily, but she was far too small and too pretty to be so strong-minded. She ran the library beautifully, though, and she was a decided social asset, so there was no question of dismissing her.

"I think it quite as important," he said blandly, "that they be kept from old as well as young. We cannot pander to the low tastes of the majority."

"Then why expect the majority to read your books?" Emily demanded. "You have to choose, you know."

She rose, smiling charmingly into their astonished faces. "If there's no further business I shall ask you to excuse me."

She found the reading-room full to the window-sills with school children, whom the assistant was vainly trying to quell. Her head ached with their demands and with the September heat.

The clock seemed to be moving backwards, Emily decided wearily. Almost an hour until she could usher the shuffling children out and go home for a quick swim before dinner.

She began to catalogue a shipment of new books, and wondered if it wouldn't be simpler to phone for William and the car instead of trudging home in the dusty heat. It seemed ridiculous to be driven home from work by a chauffeur, but there was no sense in wearing a hair shirt just because you could afford a silk one.

In the end she decided against phoning, and found Edwin, who had expected to be busy, waiting for her outside. He helped her into his car solicitously, grateful for the welcoming smile she bestowed.

"You look tired," he said gently, with a glance at the heavy shadows beneath her eyes.

Emily's lids drooped. The light was brilliant and grateful after the still, heated darkness of the library. "I am. September in Alabama ought to be deleted from the calendar."

He was shifting gears, staring hard at the gray-blue pavement ahead of him. The pavement was mottled with shadows from the great elms that almost met overhead.

"Are you going to work on there another year?" he brought out at last.

"I haven't decided yet. After my outburst this afternoon they may regret having urged me to."

He looked perturbed. If Emily insisted on working, he considered the library the most genteel calling she could have chosen. He read very little himself, but he had the non-reader's almost superstitious respect for books.

"I hope you didn't offend them," he said.

She smiled ruefully. "I did worse. I offended their prejudices. It was the heat, I think; spontaneous combustion." She told him what had happened.

His perturbation deepened. "But, Emily, I think they're right. There's enough unhappiness and immorality in real life."

"Without reading about it in books," she broke in and finished for him. "I don't understand why they haven't put you on the Board."

HE LOOKED so hurt that she was ashamed of herself. Edwin had a positive genius for provocative caustic comments that you immediately regretted. She hastened to change the subject, but her mind went on turning over the problem with which it was involved.

Could she resign herself to another year of it? She had late awake a good many nights recently, wrestling with the problem. She had to decide it soon, she knew, because the longer she put it off the more incapable she would be of any decision.

One year of idleness, one year of the library: surely that was enough. But after the library: Edwin?

She glanced at him beside her, driving deliberately and carefully; his hat perched primly upon his head. Why couldn't he, just once, slump down in his seat and, with the wind playing havoc with his hair, drive his car as fast as it would go?

He couldn't, she knew, because he was incapable of anything so juvenile and unconsidered.

"Why should I risk your life and mine," he would have asked in surprise, "when it isn't at all important that we hurry?"

His car, too, was typical of him; an immaculate small sedan, practical and comfortable. With a quizzical smile she remembered David's roadster of four—no, dear heaven, it was five years ago!

The roadster had had a top, just as David had had a bat, but neither of them was ever used. But like David, she admitted honestly, the roadster had been enjoyable only in fair weather.

Edwin swung the car into her own driveway, and the air was immediately cooler with the mist of innumerable sprays. The lawn was green-gold in the fading sunlight, purple in the shadows, not even September, she thought disrespectfully, dared to lay its scorching hand upon Frances Feltton's garden.

"Won't you stay for a swim?" she asked him lazily. "The prospect of one has kept me going all afternoon."

He hesitated, because he wanted so badly to stay, and because he had never outgrown his youthful lack of self-confidence in her presence. "I'd like to—very much."

"Then I'll see you in ten minutes. There's a suit for you in the bath-house."

The jade-green water, amazingly cool, was like a tonic. She dove and swam like a porpoise, trying valiantly to shed the day's lethargy, while Edwin watched her with a dog-like devotion. He swam as he drove; precisely and efficiently, without exerting any more speed or effort than the occasion demanded.

If it were a case of rescuing someone he would put forth the last vestige of his strength, and if that was insufficient, would quietly and matter-of-factly drown, without ever realizing that he had been heroic.

It was a pity, she thought for the hundredth time, that all the major virtues were so uninspiring to live with.

The swim over, Edwin hesitated at the door of his car, the stiff straw hat in his hand. "Are you—doing anything tonight?"

The same question, hopefully and hesitantly put, Edwin still went through the formality of asking for evenings that had been his for two years. This time she surprised him. "Nothing but going to bed." She smiled to soften the answer. "But you must be sure to come tomorrow night."

His face glowed, thanking her for the twenty-four hours of anticipation with which she had presented him. He drove almost gaily away.

DINNER was on the terrace, beautifully cool in the September dusk. Frances looked very young in the muted light, but her husband's face looked shadowed and old. Emily felt the old surge of pity for Jeffrey, who had been sentenced to spend his life in the rarefied atmosphere of his wife's ideals.

She hated to shatter the evening's peace by introducing a controversial subject, but there was no choice. She could postpone the discussion but she couldn't avoid it. She drank deeply of her iced coffee.

"Mr. Small asked me at the meeting today about this winter."

Her mother glanced sharply at her. "About taking the library, you mean?"

"Yes. My year is up this month."

"What did you tell him?"

She could see that Frances had guessed at her indecision; had dreaded it. Her father was silent.

"I told him I hadn't decided yet."

Frances ate her salad daintily. "If you are still undecided—it seems to me an excellent position to have."

She had been very democratic and consistent about Emily's working. Emily had seen her, fairly glowing in her own consistency.

"I'd hardly call it a position. Sixty dollars a month and no authority whatever. I could make the thing a success if they'd only give me a chance."

"But the money," Frances pointed out. "Is secondary."

"No, it isn't," Emily said quietly. "It's humiliating to think that you do only worth sixty dollars a month. That's why I want to go away."

Her mother's head came up. Her father's fork clattered against the plate. A momentary breeze fluttered the shaded candles.

A new way to treat burns saves the lives of ninety per cent of people with severe burns whereas only sixty per cent were formerly saved, and these persons today leave hospitals with but few scars.

A youth hostel chain that consists of safe, low-cost, overnight shelters for young people who tour the country, the first of its kind in the United States, now runs through Massachusetts, Vermont and New Hampshire along the White and Green Mountains.

The consumers' trend away from fat meat is cutting the cost of producing beef cattle, says Earl H. Hoelzer, of the University of North Carolina. Animals can be fed on pasture and legumes now, which is cheaper than corn which was necessary for the well-fattened animal.

Politics at Random

ALTHOUGH election day still is some 14 months away, the disposition of political leaders now is to speak of the 1936 campaign in the present, rather than the future, tense.

Various unusually early party activities have contributed to this, but the culminating event—widely regarded as a sort of curtain raiser—was the exchange of speeches between President Roosevelt and Republican House Leader Snell.

Mr. Roosevelt disclaimed political intent, but he spoke over the air to a Democratic party gathering, and he dealt almost exclusively with topics which are surrounded by the most active political dispute.

Mr. Snell hardly alluded at all to political affiliations, but his address to the nation was delivered under the auspices of the Republican national committee, and his appeal for votes against the New Deal was frank and open.

Motives, whether partisan or not, usually weigh far less than results where politics is involved. What the politicians think of is the political effect, and most of them are thinking that these two speeches really opened a political campaign.

President Spoke To Youth

THIS being true, it is well worth while to examine the speeches and the surrounding circumstances in some detail. The following facts are set down for whatever they may be worth as indicating what is to come hereafter:

From among many invitations, the President chose to deliver his message to a gathering of young people, among whom the bent toward liberalism is commonly supposed to be far stronger than it is among their elders.

From among many available orators, a speaker commonly regarded as a staunch conservative was selected to make the Republican reply.

Both addresses were couched largely in general terms, with little specific mention of concrete governmental problems or individual legislative proposals.

The one specific measure to which Mr. Snell devoted considerable space was the bill increasing the tax on wealth, which he condemned as designed to "confiscate property."

The special points advanced by Mr. Roosevelt were in relation to regulation of banking and industry, which he spoke of as "necessary to save the economic structure."

By MYRON PRICE

(Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

Background Shadows

EASILY discernible in the background of the discussion lay the shadow of the constitutional issue; but its outlines remained almost as nebulous afterward as they were before the two speeches were delivered.

Mr. Roosevelt talked of challenging "the methods of the old order," but he did not say what, if any, constitutional amendment he favored.

Mr. Snell rejoined by protesting against any new order which would require "that our federal constitution must be wholly rewritten."

The disparity in terms between these two utterances is obvious. Whether Mr. Roosevelt's mind and Mr. Snell's mind met in a clear-cut constitutional issue remains a mystery; certainly their words did not.

Nor is there any real assurance that this issue will be more clearly defined before election day—that is, that the Democrats will say directly that they favor any constitutional change, or that the Republicans will say directly they oppose all constitutional change.

Such issues have a way of getting tangled up in inconclusive language when the platform committees of political parties come into possession of them. That easily might happen to this issue next year.

Talks to parents

Cod Liver Oil

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

Every fall when the children returned from the country an epidemic of colds went through the family. Somehow they seemed worse than ordinary winter sniffles and left the children run down and depleted for the long pull of winter.

There seemed no definite cause for the infections. Perhaps the dust irritated noses and throats accustomed all summer to clean country air, perhaps the sudden confinement in stuffy classrooms and the absence of clear sunlight were additional causes.

Finally Mrs. Smith and the doctor evolved a plan which prevented a large part of the trouble. As soon as the family reached town a bottle of cod liver oil was purchased. Every child and the parents too were given daily doses in amounts proportionate to their ages. After that treatment it was found that even if the colds came they were not so severe.

Cod liver oil is both a food and a tonic and full of the properties of sunlight. It builds up the system and makes it less susceptible to cold infections. It is an excellent preventive, therefore, for diseases which are primarily due to too little sunlight.

To most people it is unpalatable, but so, for that matter, are many medicines, and after all, it cannot be as bad as the disease which it may prevent. It can be disguised in various ways. Most people after taking it for a while develop an indifference to its unpleasantness. A child generally will take it without protest if he has not been told that it is nasty, and if he sees his parents and brothers and sisters all doing likewise, he will follow their lead even if he objects to the taste.

One can grow accustomed to most things if one has to. The difficulty is that too often the necessity is not seen or acted upon.

hostesses are Mrs. Eli Merritt, Mrs. Ralph Lyons, Mrs. Emma Merritt, Miss Daley Perkins.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Whitaker spent Sunday and Monday at their camp in Watson Hollow.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Burger and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gerhardt of Kingston were guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. Coutant Wednesday evening. Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Woodworth and daughter, Ann, were overnight guests on Tuesday.

The Tuesday evening bridge club met this week with Mrs. Percy Terpening in Poughkeepsie. Mrs. Terpening's sister was a substitute player for the club.

Tomorrow—"Honey Bear's Return"

Sundown Stories

Less Honey

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"TO BE sure," said Honey Bear as he continued sitting and tacking the honey, "they won't want to bother with too much honey. They'll be so busy making jelly and jam of all kinds—apple jelly, currant jelly, grape jelly, plum jam—I don't know how many kinds they may be making—that they won't want or need anything else."

"My idea is simply to give the Fuddle Muddlers a little treat, a little present, a little extra dessert."

"Willie Willie will want some, although I don't really know that he is devoted to honey. He likes it well enough, I think that is the way he feels about it."

"To be sure the cubs Jupiter and Blacky like it, but they're such healthy little cubs that they like everything, bless their dear bear hearts!"

"They won't want much of it, and it might not be so good for them to have a great deal, for they'll be sampling and tasting the jelly and jam. I don't want them to be sick, of course."

"Rip likes something sweet once in a while, but a bone pleases him more than anything. I'll try to find a bone for him on the way back."

And Honey Bear continued eating the honey.

"Let me see," she said. "If this were divided up now there'd be a delicious little taste for everyone."

But before she knew it she had taken another mouthful.

"Can it be," she asked herself as she looked at what was left, "that there is so little to take back? I'm almost ashamed to give them such a mean little present as this tiny scrap. What shall I do?"

Samson's Administrator Resigns
 Apia, Samoa (AP)—Sir Herbert Hart, distinguished New Zealand soldier who has been administrator of Western Samoa since 1921, is about to retire. His tenure has been marked by his efforts to conciliate the "mau" or nationalist Samoan party, which has caused all the New Zealand administrators considerable trouble.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—Uncle Sam already has begun his annual tremendous job of acquainting the people of the nation of what has been done in the way of new laws by the 74th congress.

More and more bills are being passed each year. It is estimated that some 500 pages alone will be required to index new legislation enacted since January 3. And some 2,000 large pages will be necessary to print the text of the new laws.

The task of compiling and indexing the statutes at large passed by congress rests on the shoulders of the historical adviser of the state department, Hunter Miller.

The legal section of Miller's office does the actual work. The historical adviser also has the responsibility of seeing that the original law—bearing the signatures of the Speaker of the house, the Vice President and President—is preserved carefully.

Many Copies Made

THESE original pieces of legislation, printed on parchment of 100 per cent rag, are sent to the state department immediately after the President affixes his signature. The editor of the laws of congress in the legal section of the historical adviser's office first gets four copies of each law from the government printing office. Each of these copies is certified as a true copy of the original. Then one is sent to the bureau of the budget, another to the treasury, the third to the general accounting office and the fourth to the public printer.

A special proof with broad margins is run off for the state department. In these margins each law is classified, summarized, annotated and catalogued.

Laws Exceed 300

WHEN the corrected proof is returned to the office of the historical adviser the marginal references are checked to previous volumes. This done the copy goes once again to the public printer for plating. The plating is checked with the second revised copy at the state department then it goes back to the printer for binding.

The secretary of state must produce a bound volume of laws enacted at each session at the end of that session. The 73rd congress required two volumes.

As the 74th congress entered its final week a total of 346 laws had been passed. This number included 373 public laws, 22 private laws and 41 public resolutions.

Local Hotels Are Sued for Using Songs

New York, Aug. 29 (Special).—A large number of lawsuits were filed in Federal Court here today by various music publishers through Gene Buck, as president of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, charging hotels, inns and various amusement places in Ulster and Greene counties with violating their copyrights through using songs without authority.

Among the defendants are the Acra Hotel, Acra, charged with rendering on August 19 the song "Why Don't You Practice What You Preach"; Daniel A. Ahern, owner of Town Tavern, East Durham, playing "Sweet Sue, Just You" on August 10; Airport Inn, Leeds, operated by Charles A. Fallon, "I'm Just an Ordinary Human" on August 10; Philip Warshaw, the Embassy Club, Leeds, "Whose Honey Are You," August 10; Fred Ackley and Fred J. Pieper, operators of the Crystal Gardens, Broadway, Kingston, "Sweet Sue, Just You," on July 27; William Pintard, Pintard's Black Swan, Rifton, and Bert Chambers, The Spa, West Hurley, "Sweet Sue, Just You," on June 29 and 30.

A permanent injunction to prevent further allegedly improper use of the music and an award of damages is asked of the court in each case.

State Holds Hope For Paralysis Serum

New York, Aug. 30 (P).—Between 6,000 and 7,000 persons in the United States have received the New York Health Department's new vaccine against infantile paralysis this year and not one of them has yet been reported a victim of the disease.

This season's infantile paralysis outbreak is about average for the country as a whole. It has been worse than average in a few areas, normal in many better in others.

The fact that reports of new cases have been mounting recently is also a normal sign. The peak of these summer outbreaks is due in about the third week of August. This year's peak has followed the rule. If it remains average the number of cases should begin to show a drop in about two weeks. These summer poliomyelitis epidemics generally end with the coming of the frosts.

The mere number of persons vaccinated with apparent good results is not accepted by the New York Health Department as proof that it has the hoped-for barrier which ultimately can be used to protect all children from infantile paralysis.

Ancient Remedies

If you had lived in a village during the Eighteenth century and suffered from gout, your physician might have advised you to swallow two ounces of soap a day for three months—besides oyster shell or egg shell powder. For smallpox, says a writer in the Montreal Herald, you would have been given a black powder made from 30 to 40 toads burnt in a new pot. A daily half-pint of liquor made by boiling mistletoe berries and leaves in ale was specific for fits—at least, according to the village doctor.

Claims Prehistoric Lake

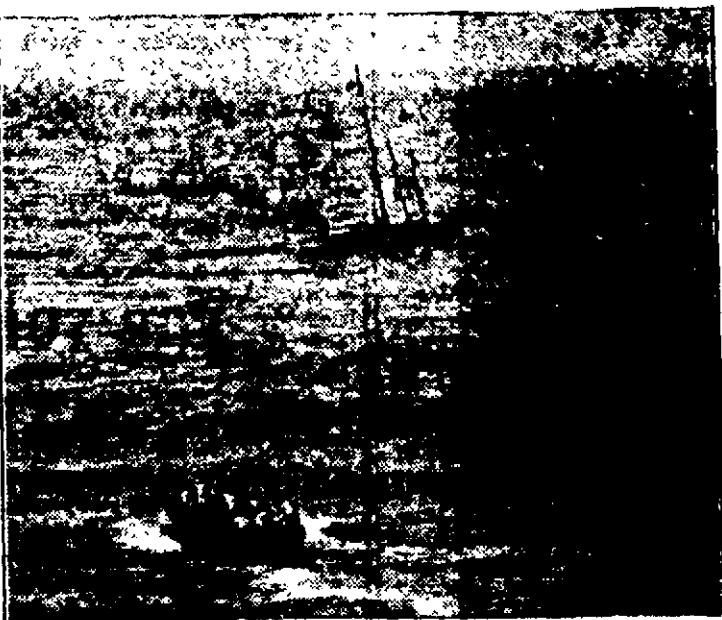

Nevada lays claim to a prehistoric lake, Lahonton, in the western part of the state. The story of geologic ages is written in the Nevada plateau. The palisades of the Humboldt river formed by violent lava flows at different periods are more remarkable than those of the Hudson. Bones of the mastodon and camel have been found in the terraces and lower reaches of this river. Here and there are hot springs whose curative powers were highly prized by the Indians.

Future Written on Stars

The Chaldean sages studied the heavens to wrest from them the secret of the influence of the heavenly bodies on human affairs. They fancied that the future was written on the stars, and that it was possible for the human mind to decipher the scroll of the heavens. From that study of the movements of the heavenly bodies developed the science of astrology; the astrologer of one age was the astronomer of the next.

"Place any man behind a governmental desk and give him a few million dollars of government money to spend and he is likely to develop the fixation that any one who does not approve of the way he does his job is a public enemy."—Tyler Dennett, President, Williams College.

PORTRAITS OF BELGIAN RULERS

TRAGEDY AGAIN STRIKES BELGIAN ROYAL HOUSE

Belgium was plunged into grief for a second time in less than two years when Queen Astrid was killed in an automobile accident at Lucerne, Switzerland. King Leopold was driving and lost control of the car. The king was only slightly injured. Leopold's father, King Albert, was killed while mountain climbing last February. King Leopold and Queen Astrid are shown with their children, Prince Baudoin (in his father's lap) and Princess Josephine Charlotte. (Associated Press Photo.)

Lindsay Electrocuted
Oswining, N. Y., Aug. 30 (AP).—Alfred J. Lindsay, former Great Meadow prison convict and one-time Cattaraugus county farmhand, has paid the penalty the state demands from killers. He was electrocuted in the death house at Sing Sing prison last night for the murder of Mrs. Bernice Farnsworth, wife of his former prison buddy. Without any show of emotion, he walked through the "little green door," glanced at the witnesses and sat down in the chair. He spoke no words as the guards fitted the electrodes to his arms and legs. At 11:03 p. m., eastern daylight time, the current was turned on and at 11:08 he was pronounced dead.

The Texas Interscholastic League has ruled that football games in league competition can be played at night only by mutual agreement of the teams.

In these days of abbreviated feminine style, about all the modern miss is anxious to conceal is embarrassment.

Some "Mrs." enjoy their friends' embarrassment over such things as "Not responsible for my wife's hair." But the majority watch the "Wash-Ad" "bargains" for their friends!

This is an informal photograph of King Leopold of the Belgians and his wife, Queen Astrid, taken as they enjoyed winter sports at St. Moritz, Switzerland, a short length of time before the tragic automobile accident which caused the beloved queen's death and injury to the king. The map shows the point near Lucerne where the tragedy occurred when King Leopold, driver of the car, looked aside to see a map. The point where King Albert accidentally met death some 18 months before while mountain climbing in Belgium is shown at top of the map.

This photo shows the royal family of Belgium before the tragic deaths of King Albert and Queen Astrid. King Albert is shown (center) talking to his wife, while Prince Leopold, who was destined to succeed him as ruler of the Belgians, is shown at left. 200,000 Fewer People Now on Relief Rolls

Washington, Aug. 29 (AP)—Government statistics showed today that there are now 200,000 fewer people at work relief jobs than there were six months ago.

High relief officials, while declaring that this figure was correct, added that the New York relief program is speeding up and that Harry L. Hopkins "will attain his goal—which is to have 3,500,000 persons at work in no time."

They said Hopkins has been weeding out men work projects conducted under the old relief setup aiming to substitute "more desirable" ones made possible by larger sums for materials and more careful planning. During the transition period the number of jobs has decreased.

The most precise figures available put the number of persons at work today at 2,600,000. This includes 2,000,000 employed at various kinds of tasks by the old federal emergency relief administration whose activities officials hope to taper off quickly as the new $4,880,000,000 work relief program hits its stride.

The 2,600,000 figure also includes 400,000 members of the Civilian Conservation Corps and 200,000 employed in the new $4,880,000,000 drive.

Six months ago 2,800,000 jobs were available for the needy—comprising 2,500,000 provided by FERA and 300,000 by the CCC. Just now federal relief activities are passing through a transitional stage from the old FERA which gave some people work and provided "doles" for others, to the new program, in which the government hopes to end the federal "dole" by giving work to $3,500,000 and returning "unemployables" to the care of the states.

Two Rochester Girls Head State Winners

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 30 (AP)—Two Rochester girls, one with a near record breaking four-year scholastic average of 99.333 per cent, head the list of 750 winners of state scholarships announced today by the State Department of Education.

Miss Frances R. Ransom, a graduate of Monroe High School, Rochester, made the highest average while Miss Margaret C. O'Connell, a pupil at Nazareth Academy, Rochester, took second honors with an average of 99.142.

The 750 scholarships provide the winners with $100 a year for the four years they attend any college approved by the Board of Regents in the state of New York.

Eight pupils received a four-year average of more than 98 per cent to win their scholarships. They included Irene E. M. Hendry, Kew High School, 98.50, and Henry Hurwitz, Jr., Mamaronock School, Larchmont, 98.955.

One hears speeches from South Carolinians defending the New Deal but the fact that the national debt has passed the highest point in the peace time history of the country, that is twenty-nine thousand millions of dollars and increasing about four thousand millions a year, is not mentioned—Charleston News and Courier.

MODES OF THE MOMENT

The Italian influence extends sway to scarf styles.

Liana Marini

The very impressive art exhibit of Italian Renaissance, shown recently in Paris, did much to influence the design of latest fashions for fall and winter. American and Parisian designers flocked to the exhibit and the result is dramatically shown, not only in silhouettes of the new season, but also in the variety of rich colors appearing in smart apparel, millinery and dress accessories.

The new scarfs are especially different and show definite Renaissance inspiration. The model sketched above at left is called a sling scarf. It is of two-toned brown and orange coloring and can be worn many ways—very effective in draped or cowl treatments, so important in the new styles.

The other scarf sketched at right, in petal design is particularly smart with the latest dresses. Fashioned of soft, chiffon velvet in tian red, one of the foremost of the new shades appearing among the smart colors for the coming season.

While the scarfs shown above may be characterized as more dreary types, many sporty styles are shown also in knitted chenille boucle—triangle scarfs of zephyr for suits in diagonal stripe effects and ascots of changeable taffeta are among the favored styles.

Daughter "Suited" For School

Edited by

LAURA I. BALDT, A. M.

For many years Assistant Professor of Household Arts, Teachers College, Columbia University, New York, N. Y.

Daughter is never too young to be smart, just so long as she is also suitably clad.

Here's a darling little dress of wooly cotton weave, that just "pretends" a blouse and skirt. It has a cute "boy" collar. And the wee jacket doesn't hide it either, for it's collarless on purpose.

The wooly novelty crepes in plaids or checks, so smart, are also charming for it.

Style No. 2973 is designed for sizes 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 12 requires 3 1/4 yards of 39-inch material with 1 1/4 yards of 35-inch contrasting and 1/4 yard of 1-inch ribbon for neck bow.

Pattern No. 1656-B

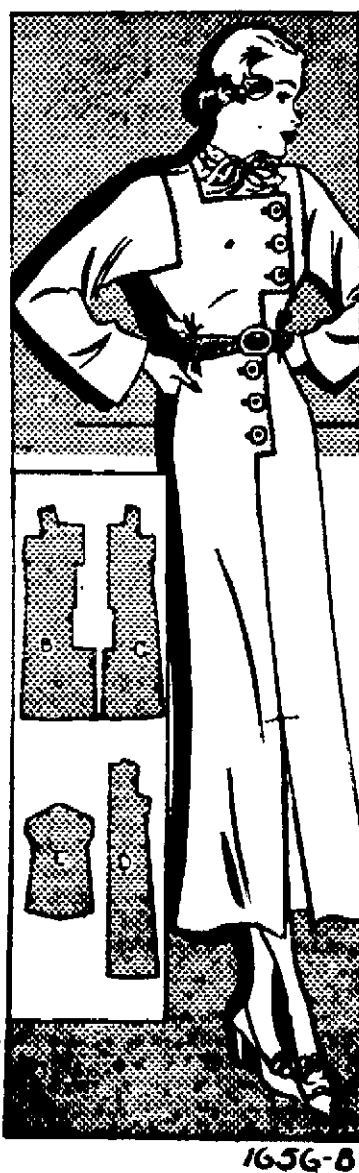

The Barbara Bell Pattern Book featuring fall designs is ready. Send 15 cents today for your copy.

Interesting Cut Lends Interest to Fall Street Frocks

The sketches, which illustrate today's frock in the process of being made, will prove to you that there is nothing difficult about it. The arm holes are square, a nice diversion, and conform to the squared off corners of the closing of blouse and skirt. The blouse buttons at the side front, and the skirt smacks in front, which creates an interesting finish for the one-piece frock. The back is also square, and into it you may tuck a scarf, and scarfs are ever increasing in popularity. Sleeves are long and straight, which is the accepted fashion for daytime frocks. And the skirt acquires width by means of an inverted pleat. It is a good frock to start the fall season. It may be of silk or thin wool, and the girl who is going off to college will find that it is the sort of thing she will need when sweaters and casual knitted things are not suitable.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1656-B is designed in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36, and 38. Size 16 (34) requires 2 1/2 yards of 39-inch material.

POLAND'S "WAR BABIES" BELOW ARMY STANDARDS

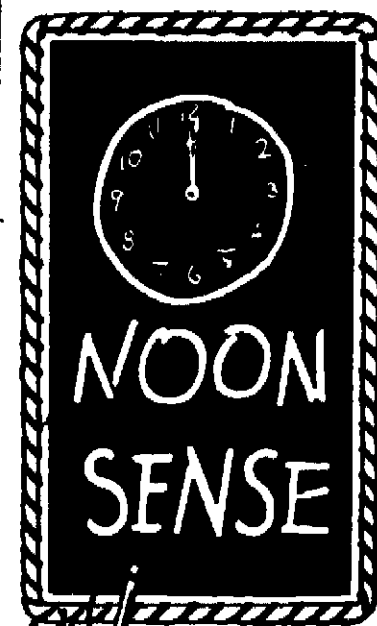

Warsaw (AP)—The recruiting of Poland's "war babies" has disclosed generally poor physical condition because of near-starvation during infancy and childhood.

They average 2 to 3 inches below normal in height, have narrow chests, poor teeth, and are prone to bone diseases. One newspaper said many of the youths born in 1914 to 1915 are tubercular.

 Flower of Spring

PATTERN 5296

"How fresh and lovely!" would be your instant comment, if you saw this quilt. Flower of Spring, in color. The flower that inspired the design is the anemone, and though it may grow in our garden in spring, still we cherish its beauty all year round. The quiltmaker who has captured it in this design makes this possible for us. Make the flower of white, peach, pale yellow or rose on a light green or blue background—and you'll have a color picture that will prove an unending delight. Even in the making, this quilt is a joy—the block is so easy to place!

In pattern 5296 you will find the Block Chart, an illustration for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

FLASHES OF LIFE SKETCHED IN BRIEF

HIS EXCELLENCY--

The Governor Of Texas

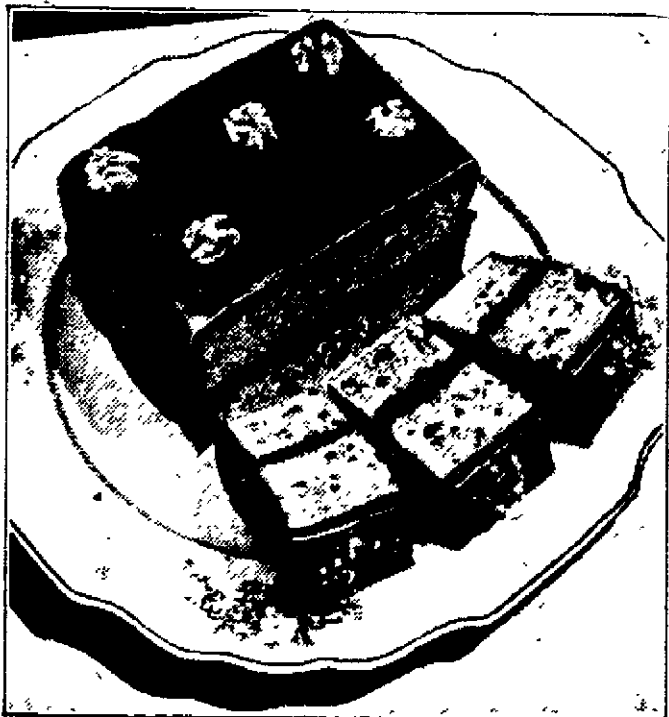

Most Texans who have met their governor, James V. Allred, call him "Jimmy." Genial, athletically inclined, an adept showman, the 36-year-old executive climbed the political ladder from district attorney to governor in a dozen years. His parents were Texas pioneers and poor. "Jimmy's" first jobs were those of bottle washer, bootblack, newsboy. Sturdily built, of medium height, Allred has blue eyes and dark hair. . . dresses conservatively, except as to cravats. . . Horseback-riding tops fishing as his favorite sport. . . he smokes nickel cigars. . . Impatient at delays, he started flying over the nation's largest state early in his term. . . Flew 1,000 miles one week and in all speaking engagements. . . An unyielding "state-righter," he has not hesitated to cross swords with the federal government.

IMMEXUEL LADIES TO HOLD PICNIC LABOR DAY

RECIPES FOR MANY DELICIOUS CAKES GIVEN IN HOME INSTITUTE BOOKLET

SERVE CARAMEL WALNUT CAKE WITH COFFEE

You'd like a really nice cake to serve with coffee in the afternoon or evening? Here's the very thing. . . a marvelously good orange-flavored walnut cake, with creamy caramel frosting.

It's so different, you'll get many a delighted comment on it. Here's the recipe:

Caramel Walnut Cake
 1/2 cup butter or other shortening
 1 cup sugar
 2 eggs
 2-3 cup coarsely chopped walnuts
 2 teaspoons grated orange rind
 2 1/2 cups sifted cake flour
 2 1/2 teaspoons baking-powder
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/4 cup milk
 Cream shortening, adding sugar gradually. When light and fluffy, add well-blended eggs. When thoroughly blended, stir in nuts and orange rind; then add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk, about one-third of each at a time, beating until smooth after each addition. Bake in 2 greased layer-cake pans in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) about 25 minutes. When cold, fill and frost with Caramel filling and frosting, decorating top layer with walnut halves.

Caramel Filling and Frosting
 2 tablespoons butter
 3 1/2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar
 4 tablespoons caramel sirup
 3 to 4 tablespoons milk
 Cream butter, adding sugar gradually. Next add caramel sirup and finally milk, a little at a time, working until of a good spreading consistency. This frosting should be allowed to stand about twenty minutes before spreading on cake. To make the caramel sirup, place 2-3 cup granulated sugar in a heavy saucepan or frying-pan and melt slowly over direct heat, stirring constantly until light golden brown. Add slowly 1 cup boiling water, cook gently to a heavy sirupy consistency; then strain and cool; bottle and seal.

With a fiddling that would have put Nero to shame, crickets by the millions swarmed into Oklahoma City and succeeded in overrunning practically everything in sight, particularly the brightly lighted business section. They thumped workers, crawled in doors and windows, and impeded trade. Here they're shown swarming about three hapless young women. (Associated Press Photo)

Lindberghs Ignore Fisher's Statement

Hollywood, Aug. 29 (AP)—Official indifference was registered in New Jersey today to an announcement by Richard Bruno Hauptmann's attorney that a child which he believed might be the supposed dead Lindbergh baby had been found living on Long Island, N. Y.

C. Lloyd Fisher, here seeking new evidence to back up a plea for a new trial for the condemned Hauptmann, announced the purported "discovery" in a joint statement with Vincent Marco, Hollywood attorney for Mrs. Emma Glöckner, sister of the German carpenter.

"I don't say the baby my men have found is the Lindbergh baby," Fisher said. "I merely say he might be and I want a fair chance to prove what I believe."

Advised of the defense counsel statement, Attorney General David T. Wilentz, in New Jersey, who prosecuted the case, smiled.

"I have nothing to say except the Pacific must be a wonderful ocean," he remarked.

Fisher said Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh had "refused" to go and see the child on Long Island to clear up the identification.

The Lindberghs are on a cross country air trip, believed heading for California.

'G MEN' WRITE FINIS TO DILLINGER GANG RECORD

The department of justice closed the records of the notorious Dillinger gang with the discovery of the body of John Hamilton (left), vicious machine gunner of the bandit mob, in a shallow ditch near Oswego, Ill. Hamilton was believed to have been fatally wounded in a gun fight with officers near St. Paul, Minn., on April 23, 1934. Henri Barbusse Dies In Moscow Today, Was Noted Literary Figure

HENRI BARBUSSE

Paris, Aug. 30 (AP)—Henri Barbusse, who died today in Moscow, was one of the Communists' valued advocates. His brilliant war record, literary fame and high personal reputation, his associates said, gave prestige to the many Pacifist and Humanitarian organizations he presided over or supported. Barbusse's health was wrecked in the war and he had been ill ever since.

Education, Career

Henri Barbusse, winning international literary recognition with a novel "Le Feu" (The Fire), composed in the midst of world war duties as a private in the French army, deliberately turned aside from the literary path to devote his talents to the spread of communism.

"Le Feu" itself was described by the author's admirers as "the book of awakening of the proletarian conscience on the battlefield" and he himself deemed his later novels and historical writings the best contribution he could make to the "proletarian revolution." Thus he shone as a propagandist for extreme left political tenets rather than as a creator of lasting literature.

From 1920 his works reflected his political ideas and activities. He was intensely "white terror" in the Balkans, an international committee against fascism and a similar movement against colonialism. Two of his works dealt with the origin of Christianity, concluded that Jesus was a myth and brought violent attacks on his ideas.

Barbusse was born in 1873. His mother was English; his father, from the south of France, was interested in journalism and the theatre. The elder Barbusse was an unbeliever and would not allow any of his children to be baptised. But he saw to it that they had good educations and Henri, as most promising, was given a classical, scientific and philosophical training second to none.

After a brilliant academic career Henri dabbled in newspaper work, then took a job in the press bureau of the department of the interior, the very government department whose function it is to suppress the radical ideas of which he later became a leading proponent.

His first published work was a book of poems, appearing in 1895. His first novel, "Les Suppliants," was devoted to his atheistic tenets and purported to analyze the state of mind of youth in pre-war France.

This book, too, marked the beginning of his preachments of internationalism. He said there were two idols against which he would always fight, the idea of a divinity and the idea of a "patrie," or fatherland. His pacifism was climaxed September 2, 1912, when an anti-war meeting in Paris at which he was scheduled to speak broke up in a riot.

In 1914 Barbusse was mobilized as a private, sent to the front, contracted a serious illness and was thereafter a stretcher bearer. Later he was attached to the staff headquarters of an army corps. He came out of the war a private, but with two citations for bravery, one for having dragged wounded men to safety from "No Man's Land" and the other for reiterated volunteering for perilous missions.

Hay Fever Sufferers Are Given Advice

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 30 (AP)—Attention hayfever sufferers—the State Department of Health suggests a visit to the Adirondacks or Long Island to escape the pesky ragweed blamed for most of your sniffles and sneezes.

The announcement, made last night, came as a sequel to an appeal by Dr. Paul B. Brooks, acting state commissioner of health, for information on localities where ragweed does not flourish. Dr. Brooks said the answers show the following places relatively free of the weed:

Other Lake, Oneida county; the vicinity of the Fulton chain of lakes; Schroon Lake, Speculator, Loch Muller, Longpond, all in the Adirondacks, and Fire Island, Long Beach, Sea Gate, West Island and Cherry Grove, all on Long Island.

No Thick Heads

When the head grows longer, it does not become wider—i. e., a difference in size usually means also a difference in relative proportions. Called "an atomic lag" by its originator, Prof. Wilson D. Wallis, of the University of Minnesota, this generalization holds good not only for heads, but for feet, hands, and other parts of the body, as well.

Nudism, Says Boone, Should Start in Home

New York, Aug. 30 (AP)—Nudism should begin at home, Dr. Halsey Boone, executive secretary of the international nudist conference, said today.

"And domestic nudism is growing—an extremely important thing," he added.

Dr. Boone made this assertion in announcing that the annual meeting of the I. N. C. would be held tomorrow, Sunday and Labor Day, at Camp Rock Lodge, in Sussex county, N. J.

He was enthusiastic about the growth of nudism and prospects for a large and successful convention.

He regarded as a good sign the difficulty an acquaintance of his encountered in trying to purchase a night gown in Manhattan.

It was indicative of how common the practice of sleeping raw is getting," he said.

"Nudism has successfully outlived what might be called its age of humorous infancy. The early fears of some who misunderstood the movement that we wanted people to go about their daily tasks unclothed has been entirely dissipated in the popular mind.

"But the reasonableness of dispensing with all garments in certain sports and recreations and the value of sun-bathing for people whose bodies are so largely deprived of all sunshine are well recognized."

The time has come, continued Dr. Boone, when greater public tolerance might be set aside for sun-bathing sans clothing.

"Such problems as these and other social implications of nudism will constitute the chief interest and discussion of the meeting sessions," he said.

The I. N. C.'s immediate object is to get at least one nudist group established in every state by January 1, 1936.

Dance At William's Lake

Rip Van Winkle Triangle, Daughters of the Eastern Star, will hold a dance this evening at William's Lake, where music for dancing will be furnished by Roger Baer and his Cubes. The public is invited.

A bright blue frog now holds the place of honor in the center of the Trailside Museum at Bear Mountain Park. Visitors look at him and wonder if they are seeing things and children ask if he is real. He is quite real, a perfectly normal Green Frog, in size and voice, but instead of being bright green on head and shoulders shading to olive or brown below, his head, shoulders and most of his back are bright blue, a color like no other frog, of American species anyway, on record. The rest of him is brown as the rest of a Green Frog should be.

Australia Studies Social Security

Premier "Joe" Lyons Seans Plan On Return From America

Sydney (AP)—A scheme for national insurance, to be operated jointly by the federal and state governments of Australia, is being considered by Joseph A. Lyons, federal prime minister, who is back at work after his homeward journey from London via the United States.

The scheme would merge all government social services under control of a federal health council.

Uniform rates for pensions, workers' compensation, child endowment and widows' pensions are proposed.

Shows Likeness To Roosevelt

In some respects the program resembles the social security aims of President Franklin Roosevelt and Premier Lyons often is described as the one chief executive who most resembles the American President. Observers noted this likeness when the Australian called at the White House a few weeks ago.

Known "down under" as "Honour Joe Lyons," he has the President's hearty greetings for all comers. He has a clipped right leg as the result of an automobile accident and he is the maker of the Australia of today.

Even more than the President, he is a family man. Photographs of him with Mrs. Lyons, their five sons and six daughters have done much to assure him a place in the hearts of Australians.

Quits Labor Alliance.

Simplicity in politics as well as in appearance is "Joe Lyons' watchword. He is no orator, just a straightforward downland who does what he feels is right.

JOSEPH A. LYONS

He was 70 and experienced only in the administration of his native Tasmania when he rocketed into prominence as premier general in Premier Scullin's federal labor ministry in 1929.

In January, 1931, he broke away from his labor colleagues, unable to condemn their inflationist policy and tendency to repudiate financial commitments. Forming the "United Australia" party he swept Scullin from office at the polls and assumed the federal premiership.

Lyons reorganized the commonwealth's finances, began a period of sound spending and by religiously meeting Australia's financial obligations, restored her credit in the London money market.

Poverty in Boyhood

Son of an Irish immigrant, Michael Lyons, Joseph Aloysius was born at Stanley, Tas., on September 15, 1873, to a cradle of luxury. At nine he had to go to work until two aunts found money for his further schooling. He had a mania for amassing knowledge and after a course at Tasmania University, he became a country schoolmaster.

His upbringing and personal experience made the labor party the only one to which he could belong. There was no place for him in any of the traditional ruling class parties. He was labor premier of Tasmania, 1922-26, and, it is said, could win any seat in the state today.

Simple and sincere, the prime minister is a practicing Roman Catholic, likes his glass of beer, has a lively interest in everything and one hobby—his family.

Pays Tribute To King

It was at college, where both were training as teachers, that he met Edith Marie Burnell, whom he married on April 30, 1915. Intelligent, homesick and popular, she has been his "right hand man" ever since.

Typical of the laborite Joe Lyons was his tribute to King George after the jubilee festivities.

"Our king is all a man should be and every such a king," said Lyons. In private life he is a kindly and generous English gentleman; in his public capacity he is an inspiration to humanity."

Scholarships for Ulster Students

Albany Aug. 29 (Special)—The State Education Department announced today that two Kingston students, Marcia J. Brown, 85 Wurts street, and Madeline Berg, 347 Washington avenue, are among the five from Ulster county who will receive State University scholarships Robert Brown, of Shokan, who attended Kingston high school, also receives a scholarship.

The complete list of Ulster county winners, and their averages for the four years of high school, are:

Elizabeth C. Hayes, 100 Washington avenue, Saugerties, who was first with 94.761 per cent; Marcia J. Brown, Kingston, 94.285 per cent; Madeline Berg, Kingston, who attended the Academy of St. Ursula, Marygrove, 93.523 per cent; Robert Brown, Shokan, 92.952 per cent; and Jenne Weinberger, 181 Canal street, Ellenville, 92.157 per cent.

The scholarships are issued each year to the pupils of each county, on the basis of five times as many scholarships as there are assembly districts within the county. The winners are taken from the top of the list of those who receive college entrance diplomas upon graduating from high school. In the event any of the winners should decline his scholarship, it is immediately offered to the next eligible on the county list.

Holders of the scholarships are entitled to $100 a year for the four years of their college courses while attending any college in New York state that is approved by the Regents.

TO THE WIVES
IS SUFFICIENT

The meals you serve help keep the family fit. In many homes, constipation results from insufficient "bulk" in the menu. This can be overcome by a delicious cereal.

Research shows that Kellogg's All-Brans furnishes "bulk" in convenient form. All-Brans also provides vitamin B and iron.

How much better it is to eat this gentle natural food than to risk taking patent medicines. Two tablespoonsful daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases, with each meal. If not relieved, see your doctor.

Business War In Philippines Won by Japan

By EDWARD E. BOMAR.

Manila, (P)—A two-year Sino-Japanese war over trade in the Philippines is being won by the Japanese, surveys made by insular government officials and by J. Bartlett Richards, the American trade commissioner, reveal.

A decade ago Chinese merchants controlled about 75 per cent of the retail trade of the islands, but now the Japanese have virtually overhauled their rivals, each having about 35 per cent, according to Richards' information.

The remainder is in the hands of Filipinos, Americans and a few scattered nationalities. The United States continues to supply 65 per cent of all imports.

Islands Seen As Prize.

A survey by the insular department of agriculture and commerce gave the Japanese only a 25 per cent share of the retail trade in 1934 compared with 40 per cent for the Chinese and 30 per cent for Filipinos, but the trend is unmistakable.

Japan's gains, commented Eulogio Rodriguez, insular secretary of agriculture and commerce, "opens our eyes to the unlimited possibilities of expansion and exploitation offered by the Philippines to other countries."

The situation is largely a boomerang effect of China's anti-Japanese boycott of 1931-33 which was reported even more effective in the Philippines than in China itself, though entirely unofficial and encouraged in no way by Philippine authorities.

In this period the Japanese, freeing themselves from dependence on Chinese retail outlets, set up branch or independent commercial houses in Manila, Davao, Cebu, Iloilo and elsewhere.

Chinese Help Rivals.

When the Sino-Japanese Tangku truce was signed May 31, 1933, the boycott was immediately lifted in the Philippines as in China. Chinese banks consented to finance imports from Japan and the trend was accentuated.

Now many Philippine towns have their Japanese shopping districts which rival the older Chinese districts. In Manila Japanese stores have become so numerous that a section of Rizal avenue, a main thoroughfare, is often referred to as "the Ginza," after Tokyo's shopping district.

Despite the growing Japanese share of the retail trade, in volume, the number of Japanese directly engaged is comparatively small, according to government figures. They show 56,355 Filipinos in retail trade, 13,787 Chinese, 752 Japanese and 302 Americans. But much of the stock of the small Chinese and Filipino village stores is Japanese.

WEDDING SCHEME

Trips Playboy
Bucharest (P)—Eighty marriages within five years is the record ascribed by the police of Rumania's capital to the 28-year-old former millionaire, Constantin Manea.

It is charged that after he dissipated his huge fortune, Manea decided to acquire new riches by marriage. He succeeded, the authorities say, because of an attractive personality, but each marriage lasted only until he could get hold of the bride's dowry.

Society circles were stirred by his arrest for some of his victims came from prominent families.

MIGRATION OF CHILDREN BRITISH RELIEF PLAN

London (P)—An experiment in mass migration is being undertaken by Britain's ministry of labor in an effort to find employment for 200,000 children.

All of them within the past 12 months have reached the age of 14, when they no longer may attend free elementary schools. As their parents are unable to send them to private schools, the youngsters constitute a serious increase in the unemployment ranks.

A majority of the jobless children live in England's "distressed areas"—South Wales, Durham, Northumberland, Liverpool, Cumberland and parts of Scotland. The ministry's plan is to send them in large groups to the more prosperous midlands and south country.

By keeping children from the same areas together in employment "camps," it is believed they will suffer less from homesickness. Arrangements are being made to provide cheap week-end fares so parents and children can visit each other.

BRITAIN IMPORTS WASPS TO BATTLE OTHER PESTS

London (P)—Britain is suffering from a shortage of wasps.

The yellow and black insects have been conspicuously absent from the jam-pots at picnics this summer, and—here's the sting—Britons have discovered that a wasp is one of man's best friends.

The rate of multiplication among insects is enormous and wasps play an important part in nature's battle by aiding in the extermination of pests.

This year the shortage of wasps which is held due to the dry weather, has reached such proportions that the Imperial Entomological Institute is importing larvae, breeding wasps and sending them to farmers.

Blow flies which prey upon sheep, the green fly which destroys pasture, and the white fly are the principal enemies of the British farmer.

Knox and Borah Will Fight for Republican Selection, Say Leaders

Washington, Aug. 30 (AP)—Seeking to discern the dim and uncertain outlines of 1936, some Republican leaders figured today that there may be a memorable contest between Col. Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, and Senator Borah of Idaho for the Party's presidential nomination.

They agreed that it is too soon to make definite predictions; that much can happen to change the picture again before decisive events occur. Nevertheless, though leaders are loath to talk publicly, they are discussing a Borah-Knox struggle as among the many possibilities.

Some of them even have it figured out that the Borah-Knox struggle might result in a deadlock which would bring the nomination of a compromise candidate such as Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, or Governor Landon, of Kansas, or some "dark horse."

There was a disposition here to feel that the action of former Vice President Curtis, Senator Capper, of Kansas, and others in coming out for Landon went far to assure him the support of the Kansas delegation to the convention. Vandenberg is likewise expected by his friends to have the Michigan delegates.

None of the four has formally declared his candidacy for the nomination, though Knox is generally regarded by Republican leaders as a participant in the race. Vandenberg and Landon have shied away from active candidacies, and Borah has kept silent.

If Knox enters the primaries, Borah's friends believe the Idahoan will also. He is cold toward the established Republican party leadership with which Knox is on friendly terms. Some party observers here believe many of the Old Guard Republicans are lining up with Knox, and Borah has been watching the developments closely.

For weeks Borah has been quietly conferring with Republican leaders from various western states. He has declined even to discuss politics with the old leaders of the party, telling them that there was an "irreconcilable conflict" between him and the old "Hoover faction."

Many Republican leaders have regarded Knox as unusually well equipped to make the race for the Republicans because he has gained support from conservative elements in the party through his unyielding attack on the "New Deal" and yet has a progressive background as a former Theodore Roosevelt "rough-rider" and "bull moose."

On the other hand, Borah's supporters declare he has shown tremendous strength among the rank and file of the party. He has kept in close touch with "young Republican" movements, and in a recent poll conducted by Robert H. Lucas, former chairman of the Republican executive committee, led the field.

Pine Camp Soldiers Pass Through City

Commencing about 11 o'clock this morning and continuing throughout the afternoon there was almost a constant stream of trucks and cars loaded with soldiers who have been in camp the past two weeks at Pine Camp, and who are now on the way back to their homes. The trucks and cars all stop at the new state armory to renew their supply of gas and oil before resuming the trip south. The first contingent that passed through Kingston was made up of 300 soldiers, and according to the officer in charge arrangements had been made to give them dinner at the Golden Rule Inn.

Liberty Statue International Symbol

The statue of Liberty in New York harbor has become an international symbol, having been used on postage stamps of at least three countries. In 1922 Peru issued a 10-centavo stamp showing the portrait of President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro. After this stamp was placed on sale it was discovered that it conflicted with the laws of Peru, for it showed the portrait of a living man. The issue was withdrawn and a new stamp designed using the same frame but substituting the statue of Liberty for the portrait. Before this was accomplished President Cerro had been deposed and assassinated.

Auto Collision On The Rosendale Road

Sheriff Saxe answered a call for investigation of an accident on De Witt's hill, on the Rosendale road, this forenoon, in which the ambulance of Van T. Pine of New Paltz and a Whippet car driven by Casper C. Hirschmann of Rosendale, were damaged, the Whippet having its rear end torn out and being damaged so that it had to be towed in.

The sheriff found that the ambulance, driven by John Ashton, was near the top of the hill, coming toward Kingston, when the Hirschmann car, being driven toward Rosendale, smashed into its side, damaging it considerably, then continued on, left the road and came to a stop in the ditch, one side up the bank. It was stated that the trouble came when Hirschmann, said to have been driving at a good rate of speed, started to pass around a small truck also headed south, near the brow of the hill, saw the approaching ambulance and tried to get back into line and skidded on the wet pavement.

An amicable agreement was reached as to settlement of damages and no arrest was made.

Finland's National Bath

Is Worth Talking About

In some country districts of Finland, both sexes frequently share the same vapor bath, for preparing the "saunas," as it is called, is an arduous task and the steam for one is enough for several people, according to a correspondent in the Detroit News.

All afternoon the housewife is kept busy heating great stones in the bath house oven. Then when the bathers, or bathers, as the case may be—is ready, she throws water over the rocks, so causing the room to fill with clouds of hot steam.

Wishing to make the most of opportunity, Finnish bathers stay on a platform near the roof, where the hottest steam collects. Once perspiration sets in, someone rubs the bather's back with a branch of birch leaves. The aroma from these is quite pleasant and fills the bath house.

After they have steamed well, the bathers like to cool off by taking a dip in one of Finland's many lakes. If there is none nearby, they must be satisfied with a cold shower, or to winter a hurried roll in a snow bank. The Finns are so fond of their steam baths that farmers often build their bath houses before constructing their home, and all the large cities have public bath houses.

Canadian Indians Always

Grew Varieties of Corn

When the early explorers came in contact with the native Indians, in different parts of the country, according to a writer in the Montreal Herald, they found that there was quite a difference in the varieties of corn they grew. This is what was might reasonably expect, when we come to think of the vast extent of country on which it was growing. From South America across central America and up to latitude fifty north, in Canada, it grows. Some of the French missionaries who did a great deal of the early exploration in North America have left records of how they found the Indians growing small patches of Indian corn. In south and tropical parts was found the large juicy type that we know as "dent" corn. As it becomes ripe, it dries and shrinks with a wrinkle and a dent in the end of the grain. As we get farther north the corn becomes smaller and drier and harder in the grain. This is what we know as the "flint" corn.

The Canadian farmers are still growing a variety known as Canada corn, that is almost identical with the corn the northern Indians were growing at the time they were first met with.

Baby Buggy Yankee Product

Baby carriages are still less than 100 years old. The first patent for them was granted to an American named Clifford on October 27, 1824, but they were not manufactured commercially until 1848 when Charles Burton made and sold the first one in New York city. There were no many protests from pedestrians against their use on sidewalks that Burton moved to England and started a factory there. After he received orders for his perambulators from Queen Victoria, Queen Isabella II. of Spain, and the pasha of Egypt, his factory was made as this led to a universal demand for his product throughout Europe. The next attempt at making baby carriages in America occurred at Leominster, Mass., in 1884, by two brothers named Whitney who marketed 75 baby carriages their first year.—Cape's Weekly.

Insanitary Conditions in China

The generations that have lived and died in China for ages have little and care less about sanitation or health measures. The soil is infected with disease germs. Millions of people live on boats in the rivers, passing their days and nights on the boats and never going ashore. The waters of China are polluted. The air is filled with the dust whenever the wind blows and sometimes when it doesn't, on the very air that is breathed one can feel death in the air.

Ethiopians Take Over Railroads

It was learned today from informed quarters.

There has not been the slightest indication, however, that the government is reserving decisions on policy to be pursued at Geneva next week pending Mr. Roosevelt's signature or rejection of the act.

Britain is hopeful the neutrality act will permit Washington to adopt a course which would not weaken league sanctions should they be voted, but the possibility that sanctions would be agreed upon—since a unanimous vote is required—appears somewhat remote in diplomatic quarters here.

Should the league fail, the British government is placing final hopes on what will be prevented upon a consultation of signatories of the Briand-Kellogg pact, with the United States and France taking the leadership in calling the conference. No action has yet been taken in this respect.

Lutherans Must Reply To State Command

Berlin, Aug. 30 (AP).—The Protestant Confessional (Lutheran) Synod today or tomorrow must reply to a state order which may lead to its dissolution.

The synod must decide, whether it is willing to accept "a passing measure" state management of church affairs, as decreed by Hans Kerrl, deputy in charge of church affairs.

To accept the offer means to fly in the face of all the synod's leaders—Bishop Karl Koch, Bishop Martin Niemöller, leading figure of the Confessionals, and the bishops of Bavaria, Württemberg and Hanover—have fought for, namely the independence of the church from state domination.

To reject it may mean, in addition to dissolution of the Confessional Synods, withdrawal of state subsidies from pastors and congregations belonging to Confessional councils and possible even the arrest of pastors who continue to preach in the face of suspension by Kerrl.

Kerrl, in a conference with Confessional leaders August 23, made it plain that he demanded not only financial control of churches, but also control of their entire administrative apparatus, including disciplinary action against recalcitrants.

Czech Relief Client Operated Upon Self

Chicago, Aug. 30 (AP).—Dr. Roger T. Vaughan, night warden of the Cook County Hospital, said today he had under his care George Pajala, 45 year old Czechoslovakian relief client, who avowedly performed an abdominal operation upon himself with a pocket knife and removed a part of his intestines.

Dr. Chester Guff, chief surgeon at the hospital, operated upon Pajala (night following) the man's removal from his home for emergency treatment.

Dr. Vaughan said Pajala apparently thought his act not unusual. He quoted Pajala as saying he had suffered from a pain in the lower abdomen and decided to operate upon himself because he was unable to pay for surgery. He slipped under his pocket knife, made the incision—nearly four inches long—and drew forth several inches of his intestines to examine them. He then cut off that part which he thought caused the pain, and tried to thrust the rest back into place.

Failing that, and growing weaker, he sought the aid of Dr. Norbert Leckband, who sent Pajala to the county hospital.

Dr. Vaughan asserted Pajala told him he performed another operation upon himself several months ago and showed the scar.

Pajala said he had been on relief for two years.

New York, Aug. 30 (AP).—The stock market was steady but mopish today as many traders deserted the street for an early start on the labor holiday.

A few specialties forged ahead. Numerous equities were virtually unchanged. Commodities were as sleepy as shares, grains and cotton hugging a narrow groove. Bonds also backed and filled listlessly. The dollar was firmer against leading foreign exchanges.

American Power & Light preferred shares got up 2 to 3 points and Evans Products and McIntyre Forcupine gained 1 each. Small improvement was shown by Bethlehem National Steel, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Columbia Pictures, Electric Auto-Lite, Western Union, Consolidated Gas, Columbia Gas, North American, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central and International Harvester. A loss of more than a point was suffered by Phillips Petroleum and the other oils were backward.

Indians' Ark Legend Is Still Related in Quebec

The remnants of the Indians in the country surrounding Capes Trinity and Eternity, the high points on the Saguenay river, still cling to the ancient belief that the ark or, as they term it, "the big canoe," rested on the top of Cape Trinity, 2,000 feet above the level of the river which skirts its base, and was placed there by a flood which inundated the rest of the earth, destroying all life thereon, only the families of worthy Indians, as well as pairs of the various animals and birds being preserved by the Great Manitou, whose guiding hand landed "the big canoe" on the last bit of earth left uncovered by water.

The Indians also have a legend, says a Tadoussac (Quebec) correspondent in the Washington Star, which bears considerable resemblance to the casting of Satan and his rebellious followers out of paradise. According to the Indian tradition, the Great Manitou cast the "fallen angels" over the precipice of Cape Trinity. All met death in the river below with the exception of the leader, who was so strong that the fall of 2,000 feet only crippled him.

As this "angel" gathered strength he became the demon of the river, wrecking canoes, drowning peaceful Indians and wreaking havoc in general.

Mayo, the father of the Indian race, decided to seek and vanquish him in a hand-to-hand encounter. The battle between the two was terrific, Mayo swinging the demon around his head and against the rock of Trinity with such force that the three great gashes in the mountain resulted from the contacts, so the tradition continues. Finally Mayo was victorious, crushing out the life of the demon and thus restoring peace and quiet to the beautiful waters of the Saguenay.

Water, Milk Power Used to Run Ancient Clocks

In bygone days running water was largely used to measure time, and water clocks can be found all over the ancient world, observes a writer in the Montreal Herald. Some were very simple, others were of astonishing delicacy and complexity. Water clocks had the disadvantage that, as the pressure of water decreased, the rate of flow decreased also. In Greece and Rome, where the hour was a variable unit, being one-twelfth part of the period of daylight or night, as the case might be, they had also to be frequently adjusted.

The attempt to allow for these two anomalies led the great clock-makers of Alexandria to devise miracles of ingenuity, among them a famous clock set up by Ctesibius in the Temple of Arsinoe. Every 24 hours a little winged boy with a pointer in his hand ascended a column, pointing to the hours marked on it. At the end of the day he fell to the bottom and began again. The motive power was supplied by the tears of another winged boy, who wept continuously into a bronze bowl.

This was only one of many fluid clocks; there was even a milk clock in an Egyptian temple. The measurement of time by the burning of candles, which for long was popular in monasteries, is an application of an essentially similar idea.

Gold in Sheepskin

In the remote region which lies between the Black sea and Caspian, credited as the authentic destination of Jason and his Argonauts in their expeditionary search for the golden fleece, the natives catch the fleeces of gold brought down by the mountain streams by placing sheepskin wool up in the beds of the river. "The gold particles which cling to the greasy wool confirm the age-old legend which has been handed down from the ancients to each succeeding generation," says A. K. Dawson, manager of the Russian division of the American Express company.

Longfellow's Home

The Longfellow house in Cambridge, Mass., built in 1700, is doubly famous as the poet's home and as the one-time "headquarters" of Gen. George Washington. In the early days of the Nineteenth century, the house which entertained Washington, Talleyrand, Queen Victoria's father, and Charles Dickens was used as a rooming house for college students. Longfellow found quarters there while he was a young Harvard professor. He became the owner of the house in 1843.

Islands Inaccurately Mapped

History records the disappearance of many islands, but most of them were only inaccurately mapped. A classic example, due to the difficulty of polar observation, writes R. A. Young, New York City, in Outlook Weekly, is Gjesla land in the Arctic ocean, which was discovered in 1707, rediscovered in 1874 and explored in 1896. In 1927 a fourth ship sailed to the spot and could not find the land. The other three had made identical errors in reporting its location.

Morgenweck Foresees Rosy Season For Legionnaires

Frank "Pop" Morgenweck, manager of the Kingston Legionnaires and Frank Shimek, guard on the team, today made the rounds in Kingston making basketball and prospects for the coming season.

"Everything looks rosy," said Morgenweck to a sports reporter, "and I think we should have a bigger and better season than last year."

Shimek, who has been in Kingston since last season, nodded his approval of what "Pop" said when he was asked his opinion.

This year Kingston will play in the American League, having been given a franchise, competing in 20 games at the Municipal Auditorium against such clubs as the Visitation, St. Joseph's, Newark Mules, Philadelphia Spahs, Union City and possibly the Celtics who have asked to represent New York in the league.

Paterson and Wilmington, Del., also have applied for franchises.

Morgenweck has contracted with his players of last year to wear the uniforms of the Legion again. They are Carl Husta, Frank Shimek, guards; Bill Hamilton and Jim Lennon, centers; Hank Kutyka and "Corky" Stanton, forwards. He also has called in Tommy Weems and Bobby Cullum, utility men, and has sent a contract to Ward "Horse" Meyers, former forward for Fort Wayne Horace "Pip" Koehler may be back with the team if he can get a leave of absence from the Portsmouth club of the Piedmont League which he manages.

Morgenweck said he hoped to start the season early in November with a couple of exhibition games before the league opens. The team will arrive in Kingston several weeks in advance for training and coaching. In each player's contract is a clause stipulating that failure to observe training rules means a $25 fine. "And this will be enforced, too," said Morgenweck.

"All of the players will receive their salaries as called for in the contracts," he added. "There'll be no cuts. In return for this guarantee I'm demanding that each player keep in the best physical condition. We want to win the championship and no stone will be left unturned to accomplish this end."

City Bowling League Meeting September 5

A meeting to arrange for the approaching bowling season will be held by the City League at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday evening, September 5. President Peter Keresman told a reporter this morning. Scheduled starting time of the session is 8 o'clock. All team captains are expected to be present.

Teams in the league are American Legion, 1934-35 champions, Immanuel, Livingstons, Colonials, St. Peter's, Lyceums, Central Hudson, Y. M. C. A., Uptown Merchants and Downtown Merchants.

At the close of the last season, the City Leaguers manifested a strong spirit for bigger and better things in the 1935-36 campaign which promises to be a banner one in the history of the organization.

Officers at the helm, besides President Keresman, are Emil Boessneck, vice president, John Raible, treasurer and "Whitey" Buddenhagen secretary.

A. L. F. DEYO USTER COUNTY FIRESTONE DISTRIBUTOR

A. L. F. Deyo of New Paltz, who was administrator for the CWA in Uster county and later executive director for the LWB which succeeded it, has been appointed distributor for Firestone tires, batteries and other Firestone products in Uster county. He expects to open up a store in Kingston within a week or so, but at present has his headquarters at 787 Broadway.

Mr. Deyo who resigned his position with the LWB early in August, has just returned from Akron, Ohio, where he spent several weeks in training at the Firestone plant.

Finishes Exhibition Tour

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 30 (AP)—James J. Braddock finished his exhibition tour of the south last night and made plans to leave for New York today with his manager, Joe Gould. Gould said he and the heavyweight champion likely would depart from New York late in September for a tour of Ireland and England.

Yellow Jackets Name Officers, Reis Brothers To Back Team

Several veterans of the Kingston Yellow Jacket football team turned out at the meeting in the Kaaslich billiard parlor, Thursday night, to discuss plans for the gridiron season this fall.

The group consisted of Jimmy "Jas" Cullum, Bill Van Derzee, Ed Tierney, Jim "Moose" Tiano, Jimmy Teigerwald, Harold Coons and Charlie Raible. Other members of last year's Yellow Jacket squad are expected to report shortly for this season.

Charlie Raible was picked to manage the team which will be known as the Reis Brothers Kingston Yellow Jackets. These two, Fred and Frank, operators of Keystone Service Stations, will back the club instead of A. R. Newcombe. Raible is connected with the Reis service stations.

Assisting Raible will be Frank Reis as treasurer of the team. Gus Teigerwald as secretary and trainer, the job he held last year, and Joe Kelly, booking manager.

It is planned to start the season on Sunday, September 29, probably against Hudson. The Albany Lucky Strikes and Newburgh will be next, then Sing Sing, if the Jackets can get their playing date with Warden Lawes eleven moved up for later in the season than other years. "We always have played too early at Sing Sing," said Raible last night. "I think we should have more experience with out plays before we take on such a strong opposition, and this fall we'll ask for a later date."

It was the consensus of those at the meeting that Raible's suggestion should be carried out in order to strengthen the chances of the Yellow Jackets and enable them to furnish more opposition.

Another meeting will be held next Tuesday at which more complete arrangements for the season are to be made.

The first practice is scheduled for Sunday morning at the Athletic Field. Starting time is 9 o'clock.

All of the men present at last night's business session are expected to attend the drill, the vets and newcomers—Ray DuBois, Cowboy Evory, "Mush" Levy and Bob Longfield, who played with Poughkeepsie last year. Regular Yellow Jacket players absent from last night's meeting, but who are expected to don the Yellow and Blue again this fall are Joe Vosdick, Al Flanagan, Ed Burgevin, Gil Kelder, Ed Minasian, Tony Debrosky, Bill Mosby, and Don Beany.

Results Of Track And Field Events At Hasbrouck Park

Approximately 1,000 young people enjoyed themselves at Hasbrouck Park Thursday to help celebrate Mayor's Day.

Championships in baseball, softball, horseshoes, checkers and track and field were part of the celebration activities.

Previous to the start of the track meet Mayor Heiselman spoke to the children. He encouraged sports activities and mentioned the fact that next year the girls as well as the boys would be afforded supervised play. During his stay at the park around the mayor was a popular figure and was the central attraction of admiring throngs of youngsters.

The day opened with the championship baseball game in which Block Park defeated Barmann's 6-0. The horseshoe thing championship followed with Wolf of Barmann's displaying the best ability in making ringers. He won the title with some to spare.

Next on the program was the checker tournament. Kiernan of Block Park easily outmaneuvered the rest of the field.

Hasbrouck Park won its only championship when its Pee Wee softball team defeated the Block Park Pee Wees.

In Senior softball, Block Park won from Barmann's which, coupled with their baseball victory, gave them diamond supremacy.

Fourth Park defeated Barmann's Junior softball by displaying fine team work.

In the track and field events, Fourth Park scored the most points but not enough to give them the play and title. Barmann's and Block Park were a close second and third. Final scores are as follows: Barmann's 176; Block 173; Fourth 157; Hasbrouck and Athletic Field in fourth and fifth positions.

Buddy Baer Stops Jack Doyle in First

Jack Doyle, who trained at the Edgewater Camp, Lomont, and is well known locally, had some hopes flattened Thursday night when he was stopped by Buddy Baer in Madison Square Garden.

The kid brother of Maxie Baer, ex-champion, floored Doyle three times in the first round, and then Referee Cavanaugh stopped the fight, awarding the decision to the 225 lb. and went on a technical knockout.

During the two minutes and 35 seconds that the bout lasted, Judith, a pretty blond screen actress, wife of Doyle, manifested great concern for her husband.

The first knockdown was from a hook that landed low on the head. Mrs. Doyle leaped to her feet and screamed. The referee counted and Jack was on his feet again. He was warned to "keep 'em up" and time Doyle went down at the count of six and the third time he hit the deck. Cavanaugh stopped the fight, which was scheduled for about 12,000.

Valley Bowlers Met at Walden

The Hudson Valley Bowling League met Wednesday night at Walden to discuss the coming season. Six teams were represented and will play in the league. Homer Emerick's Recreations will bowl for Kingston while the other teams entered are the White Elephants from Newburgh, last year's champions, Middletown, Port Jervis and Walden. Liberty is a newcomer and will replace the Kingston Recreations as the sixth team in the circuit.

Three rounds will comprise this year's schedule and the opening date will be October 15.

The second and final organization meeting will be held on September 11 at Walden.

Saugerties To Play Night Hawks At 9

The Saugerties A. C. which has won 10 out of 14 games this summer, will play home tonight, meeting the New England Night Hawks in a night game at the Athletic Field, starting at 9 o'clock.

Warren "King Kong" Shackett and Benny Benjamin will form the Saugerties battery. The rest of the lineup will be as usual.

The Night Hawks will have their regulars, including several former big leaguers—Freddie Maguire, Red Sox; Jack Loftus, International League; Doc Gatreau, Boston Braves; Hollis Thurston, Brooklyn. It is the hope of the Saugerties club to win and thus fortify itself for the game at Walkill Medium Security Prison Labor Bar afternoon at 2:30, against the Mohawk Colored Giants.

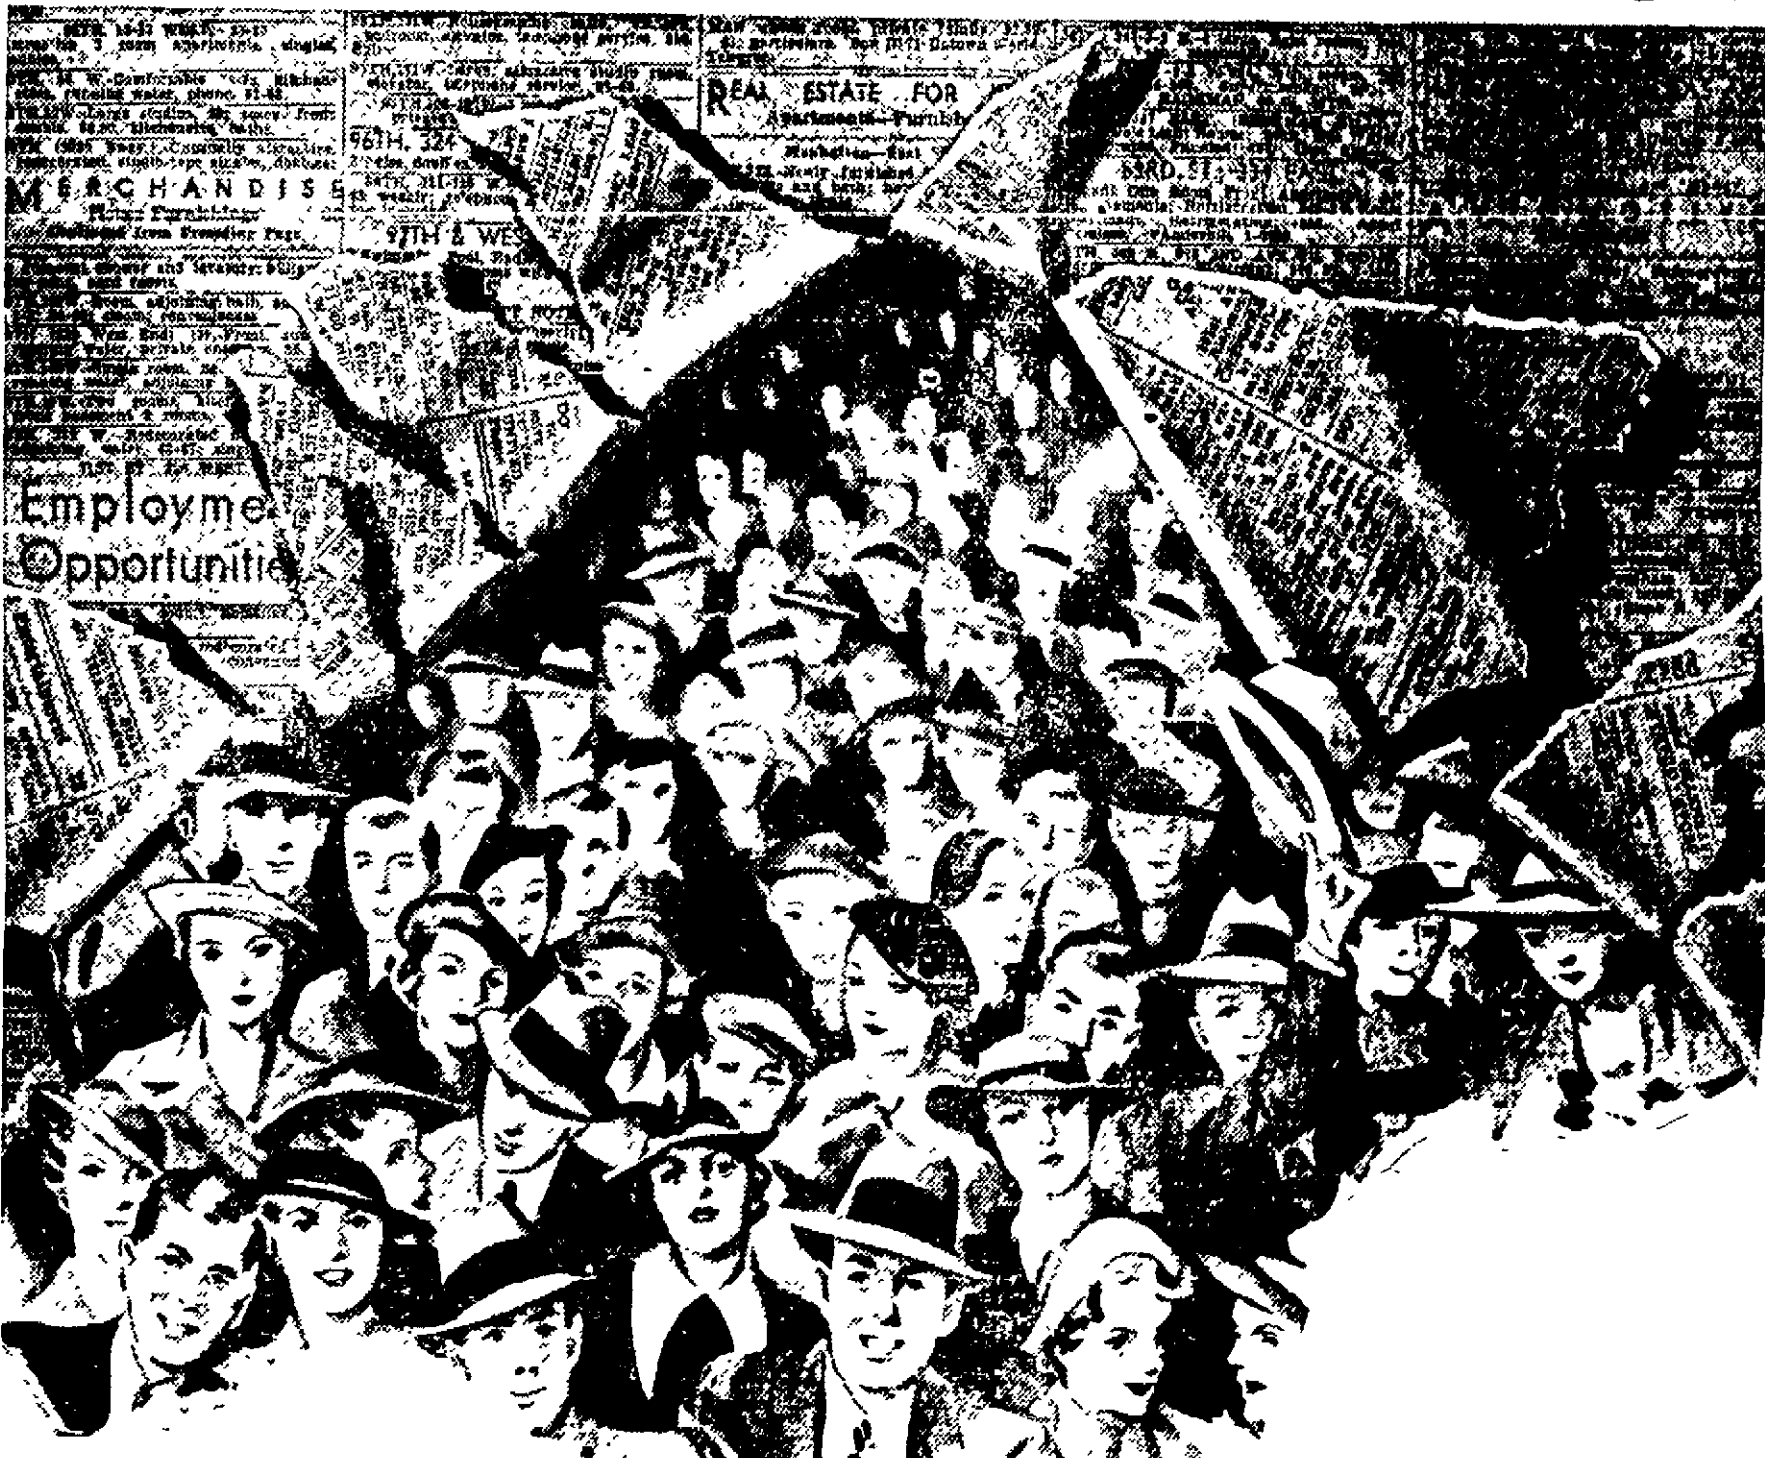

Margery Clubb Wins Girls' Tennis Tourney

Miss Margery Clubb defeated Miss Agnes Kennedy recently in three sets by 6-0, 1-6, 6-2 for the city championship at Forsyth Park.

The tournament was run in conjunction with the city playground athletic program. Miss Clubb went through a field of 10 competitors to take the title. She has been playing very steady tennis all season and was pushed to the limit in some of her matches by the up and coming players such as the Misses Edith Kennedy, Evelyn Mackenzie and Agnes Kennedy. Beatrice Birestein and Evelyn Mettis also displayed improved tennis.

Next year another championship will be conducted and it is hoped that a larger field will enter.

The Original General Sherman

It was Chauncy Depew, himself a noted after-dinner speaker, who said that General Sherman of Civil war fame, was "the readiest and most original talker of his time." At banquets his fashion was to rise and address the musicians instructing them as to the music they were to play. Then, to the waiting waiters, "Each speaker is to speak as long as he holds his au-hearty laugh and merriment are all right, but don't draw it out into a long giggle or into a noise. Let it be short and emphatic."

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

For so long has it been the custom to shower with gifts friends fortunate enough to take an ocean voyage that the origin is hidden in mystery. The presents for the departing ones usually take the form of baskets of fruit, flowers or the latest in best sellers.
Right up to the moment of sailing, messengers come aboard with boxes and parcels and the result is that staterooms resemble greenhouses or corner fruit stores. More than likely, the voyager, if he is at all popular,
not only finds himself loaded down with fruit and flowers, but the possessor of five or six copies of the latest novel. If the crossing is at all rough, the odor of flowers doesn't help in keeping the stomach steady. Fruit is unnecessary because stewards pursue passengers with it and catch all who are not quick on their feet. As for the best seller—well, there are usually several copies available in the ship's library. Nevertheless, it is a pleasant custom and the traveler, by holding onto the cards and notes, may even things up when the donors in turn, sail.

This being New York, the custom of presenting gifts to ocean travelers has been commercialized. Many stores specialize in steamship baskets that start at $10 with quite a nifty number at $50. Then, too, there are boxes of candy which run up to $10. A fair showing of the season's blooms, done up in one of those big boxes and delivered to the ship by messenger, costs about $10. For those who forget—there are flower vendors right at the pier. Also vendors of flags of various nations, books, magazines, etc.
As a matter of fact, it is rather hard to get aboard to see friends off without luging something. In the old days, the personal deliveries were largely bottles—to keep the traveler cheered up until the bar opened.

But Fisher, the famous Mutt and Jeff cartoonist, when he was leaving for Europe some time ago, received a novel going-away present from a young woman who was a great admirer of his work. It was a portable phonograph with several torch song records intended to remind him of her whenever he played them. He was very much pleased with the gift until he arrived in Southampton. There he learned that the duty on the phonograph was more than it had cost. Just as the customs agent was about to collect, the cartoonist fooled the British government by stepping to the edge of the pier and dropping the machine overboard—a fact he has carefully kept from the one who gave it to him.

Walter Huston, just before he sailed for England to play the lead in the picture, "Cecil Rhodes," told me of the time he returned to his home town of Toronto in "Dodsword." During the entire week he attended teas and various other functions and after the theater hurried to parties. Day after day, he was mentioned on the front pages of the newspapers. And "Dods-word" played to the poorest week's business of the entire town. Incidentally, on his return from Europe, Mr.
Huston told me about a coast to coast tour in "Dodsword" which will keep him traveling until the middle of next year. It might also be added that Sam Goldwyn paid $100,000 for the screen rights to the play which is something of a record in these times.

A visitor in town told me about a woman elevator operator at 295 Madison Avenue who took him to the forty-first floor. On the way up she said that, despite the fact that she operates the car to the top floor of the building hundreds of times a day, when she goes home nights, she always walks up to her apartment for fear something will go wrong with the elevator!

The foregoing recalls a sign I saw in the window of a Madison Avenue store while riding by in a taxi. It read: "Decorator of natural flowers."
Some day I'm going back to find out how natural flowers can be decorated.

Robot Puffs Cigar

and Reads Books
Montreal.—Mrs. Betty Leyborn, professor at the British Institute of Mental Science, has taught her robot, "Algi," how to see, read and think.
Mrs. Leyborn has brought Algi to Montreal for a series of public demonstrations. She argues that the robot really thinks before it answers and can produce the right reply for the right question.
Algi has a mechanical nervous system inside a nickel-plated body which reacts to the vibrations of the human voice and controls the answers. The robot's ears are concealed microphones. The eyes are photo-electric cells which actually can read a book and repeat the words in the book audibly. Algi can smoke a cigar and fire a pistol whenever told to do so.
